

While the intent of this filing appears to be in good faith. I do not believe that the long term effects of allowing unlicensed operations would be in the best interests of the amateur community. My concern is that in allowing unlicensed visitors use of these frequencies there would be a problem of importation of these units being sold in the U.S. very much like the existing problems that occur with the other unlicensed radios that are modified and then encroach on other amateur bands. The FCC appears to have enough problem enforcing the existing pool of radio regulations as it is.
